Mr. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P.
Room 365-WB
House of Commons
OTTAWA, Ontario

Dear Mr. Alkenbrack,

You will recall that the Duke of Brunswick agreed to supply George III with a certain number of Hessian troops for General John Burgoyne's use in his campaign in what was called the Northern Department. Burgoyne's plan, acknowledged to have been a good one, was to cut the northern colonies in half; he would proceed down Lake Champlain, Lake George and the Hudson River to a point near Albany where he would meet Col. Barry St. Leger's force coming west through the Mohawk Valley, and a force sent by Howe that would come up the Hudson River. This junction, if it had taken place, would almost certainly have determined the course of the Revolutionary War in favour of England.

General Howe had decided to go off after George Washington and only sent a token naval force up the Hudson as a futile diversion; St. Leger alienated the large Indian force that had come with him from Oswego, and they left him. His siege of Fort Stanwix was inept in the extreme, even though he had advance intelligence of the size of the garrison there. When it was learned that a large force of American militia was on its way from the Albany area, what was left of the St. Leger force retreated in panic.

General Burgoyne knew on August 6 that there would be no meeting with forces from Howe; he nevertheless determined to continue southward. His supplies were very low, colonial militia having cut his lines off somewhere near Fort Edward. On August 15-16, 1777 he sent a group of the Hessians under Lt.-Col. Friederich Baum to the vicinity of Bennington, Vermont (then called the New Hampshire Grant and claimed by the Province of New York) to look for food, horses, and possible Loyalist recruits. With him went a force of Loyalists known as Peters' Corps, or The Queen's Loyal Rangers. Baum's men spoke no English. They were deceived into thinking that large numbers of men who followed them and sometimes camped nearby were Loyalists; as it turned out they were American militia and when the time came they attacked the Baum force during the famous Battle of Bennington, August 16, 1777. Casualties were heavy and the British force was defeated. Capt. Justus Sherwood, under Peters, was involved in this battle.

The Hessians and the Loyalists were later involved in the battles around Saratoga, particularly that at Stillwater and Bemis Heights. As you recall, this campaign culminated with the generous Saratoga Convention whereby the British forces were to be allowed to return to England through Boston, and the provincial Loyalist corps to return to Canada. The American Congress, however, refused (under influence of George Washington) to ratify the Convention, and the remnant of British regulars and a few provincials were marched around four states for a period of nearly four years, coming finally to rest near Charlottesville, Virginia - a little known story from the period.

The Loyalists (including a good many Hessians) settled around St. Jean (St. John, St. John's), and Sorel, Quebec for several years until the upper St. Lawrence district could be opened. Justus Sherwood had been a surveyor in Vermont (he surveyed the piece of land that Henry French, my ancestor, purchased from Enoch Mallory in 1776-7). He surveyed some of the new St. Lawrence townships, and was one of the principal settlers in No. 7, Augusta Township, in 1784. The attachments will be self-explanatory from here.

It has always proved out that Loyalists in the various Upper Canadian townships were rather closely related and came from the same areas in New England and New York. This is certainly obvious in Augusta Township, Grenville County. John Alkinbrack certainly must have married a girl from a New England or New York family.

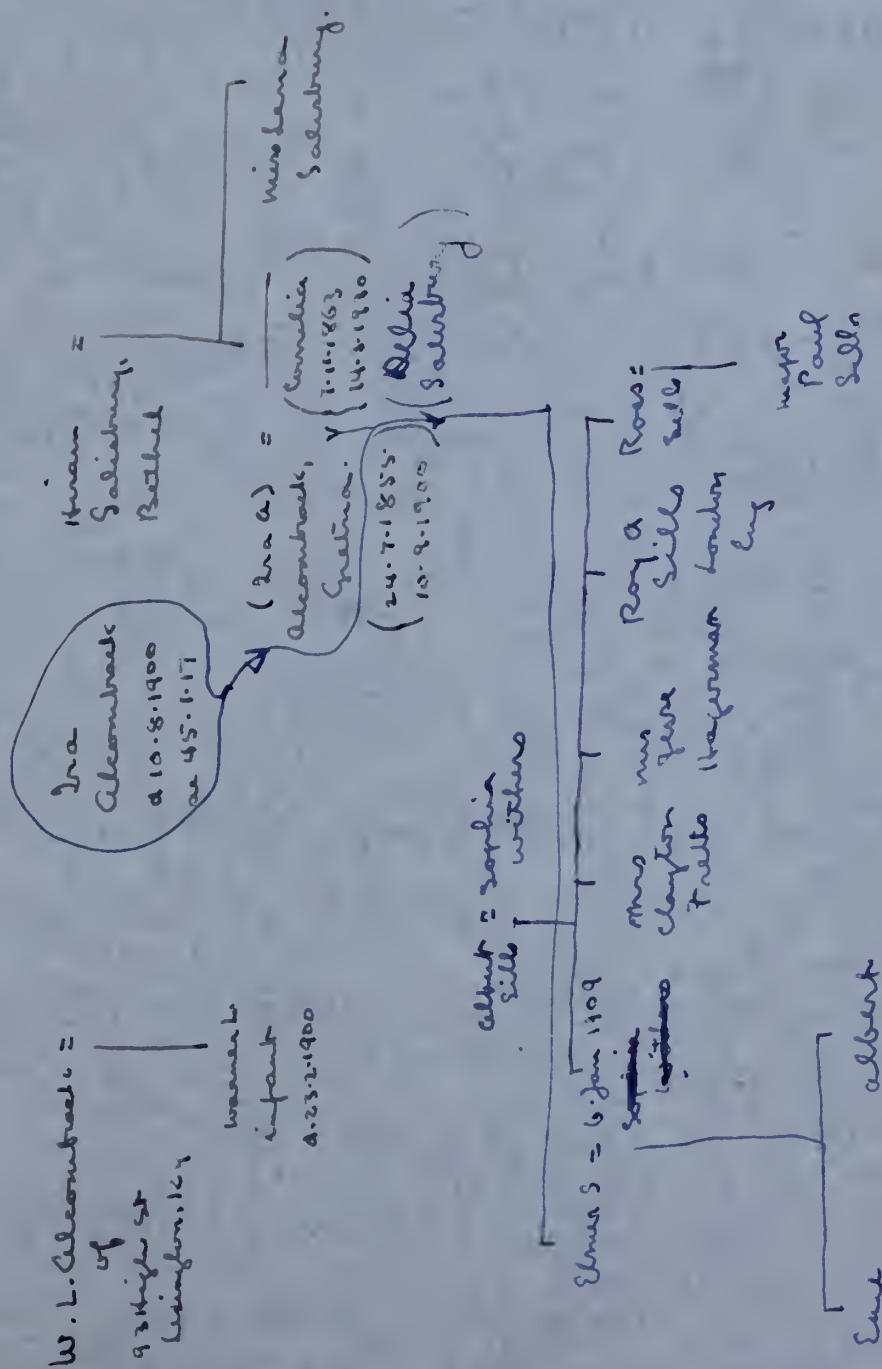

I hope this is of some interest to you.

Sincerely,

James

GRETNA COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS AGO AT BAY PARSONAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer S. Alkenbrack, of Gretna, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on the afternoon and evening of January 6, 1959. Fifty years ago on January 6, 1909, they drove with a horse and buggy to the Bay parsonage, Napanee, to be married by the late Dr. Charles DeMille.

The groom is the son of the late Ira Alkenbrack and his wife, Delia Salisbury, and was born near Camden East. They came to live on the farm at Gretna when he was three years old, and this has been his home ever since.

The bride was born at Gretna, the oldest child of the late Albert Sills, and his wife, Sophia Withers. When she married she moved just a mile away from her old home. She taught school for six years before she was married.

Mr. Alkenbrack has always been interested in political affairs. He spent several years in the council and one year as reeve of North Fredericksburgh. He is at present the president of the Conservative Association of North Fredericksburgh.

Both have always been interested in the church at Gretna, of which Mr. Alkenbrack is a trustee. Mrs. Alkenbrack is a life member of both the Woman's Association and the Women's Missionary Society and still teaches in the Sunday School.

The have two sons, Earl, who lives in Napanee, and Albert, at Gretna. They also have five grandsons: Roy, Brian, Ernest, Paul and Erik. The oldest grandson, Roy, opened the door to the guests in the afternoon and they were received by the bride and groom in the living room.

The tea table was covered with a Damask cloth and was centred with white and gold chrysanthemums. Also on the table was a three-tier wedding cake. Tea was poured by the bride's two sisters, Mrs. Clayton Fretts and Mrs. Jesse Hagerman. Mrs. Earl Alkenbrack, Mrs. Albert Alkenbrack and Mrs. Harold Barnhart were in charge of the refreshments and serving and were helped in the serving by Mrs. Charles Sills and Mrs. Claude Craig.

Relatives and friends came, some from a distance, although it was cold that day. Many lovely gifts were received and many cards which were greatly appreciated. A beautiful golden chrysanthemum plant was received from the Horticultural Society of Napanee, of which the bride is a member. This, too, was greatly appreciated. The other flowers, including the bride's corsage and the groom's carnation, were given by the sons and their families. These were lovely. They gave other gifts, also.

A cablegram was received from a sister-in-law, Ms. Roy A. Sills, of London, England. Messages and gifts were received from the bride's brother, Ross Sills, and his wife, in Toronto, and also from their son, Major Paul Sills, who were not able to be here.

In the evening the neighbors came and an enjoyable time was spent. At the close of the evening an address was read to the bride and groom, by W. F. Joyce and S. Wilson presented them with a beautiful tea service from the community. Both made suitable replies for the gift.

A letter of congratulation was received from the Provincial Secretary on behalf of the Government of the Province of Ontario, with the compliments of Norris Whitney, M. L. A.

TRINITY UNITED

REPORTS GIVEN AT ANNUAL MEETING SHOW GOOD YEAR

Reports given at the recent congregational meeting in Trinity United Church were surprisingly good in view of the fact that for several months the church was without a permanent minister. The membership is now 545; 11 new members having been received during the year. There were six marriages, seven funerals and 17 baptisms.

The amount raised for all purposes was $21,805. Of the $3,492 raised for Missionary and Maintenance, $1,624 was contributed by the Women's Missionary Society, the Evening Auxiliary and the Mission Band.

The secretary of the W. M. S., Mrs. J. D. Mayhew, reported that the highlight of the year was that the Society had played host to the Belleville Presbyterial in February, and Miss May Hawley reported that receipts had been $684, with $645 sent to the Presbyterial. Miss Vivian McLaughlin read both the secretary's and the treasurer's reports for the Evening Auxiliary, and Jane Spencer reported for the Mission Band.

Reporting for the W. A., Mrs. B. G. North stated that the major projects of the year had been completion of payments for the church carpet and purchase of a diningroom rug and other furnishings for the parsonage. The bazaar, two rummage sales, catering for several banquets and weddings, and work done by the individual groups had added up to a busy and successful year. The treasurer's report, given by Miss Vivian McLaughlin, showed that a total of $3,660 had been raised, of which $1,061 came from the bazaar, $308 from the rummage sales, and $1,683 from contributions of the groups.

For the senior Sunday School, Fred Keith reported 10 teachers, a membership of 100, and an average attendance of 75 per cent. The treasurer, Charles Battle, reported receipts of $559, plus $257 for the M and M fund. Mrs. Walter Storey reported 10 teachers and an enrolment of 115, in the primary School.

J. G. Atkinson reported for the choir.

Reporting for the 50-50 Club, Mrs. Walter Storey said that there had been 10 meetings, with the highlight of the year in April when all past presidents were invited, and the address was given by Rev. Noble Hatton, now of Sherbourne United Church, Toronto, who had founded the club while minister of the church. This is a purely social organization, with projects and expenses financed by collections taken at the meetings. It is responsible annually for decorating the church for Christmas and Thanksgiving and for the pageant at candlelight service.

Mrs. John Henry gave a surprising report for Miss Gandier's Sewing Class, which with 16 meetings with an average attendance of 11, had carried out much missionary work. Parcels of bedding and clothing has been sent to Canadian Relief Abroad, and to Rev. Miscial, of Italy, and various articles had been donated to welfare workers, the County Health Unit, the V.O.N., the Salvation Army, to a family which had been burned out, and to a destitute family of 11. Much other missionary work of a practical nature had been done, all financed by collections taken at the meetings, totalling $83.60.

The recording steward, J. D. Mayhew, brought in the report of the nominating committee which was adopted. The new elders are: Glen Collins, William Finlay, and Limbert Graham; and Bert Asseltine, William Harley, John Kernan, sport enthusiast. He has lived his entire life in the vicinity of Belleville, where he has farmed and owned Reid's Dairy until last year.

Dr. H. C. Burleigh,
Bath.

Dear Dr. Burleigh:

I met you at a recent meeting of the Historical Society in Napanee and during a conversation about Indian artifacts I mentioned that I had found a few buttons and you asked me to send them down to you for inspection. I enclose them herewith.

They were found on my father's farm (five miles west of Napanee on No. 2 Highway) on the north bank of the Napanee River.

The one button (three guns) is from the Royal Ordnance Corps. The other button (royal cypher) is from the Royal Regiment of Artillery. The third item bearing the crown and lion device appears to be pewter and may be part of a hat badge or some such thing.

These items would appear to be army equipment of the first half of the 19th century. Perhaps an inspection of these may be of some use to you from a research standpoint.

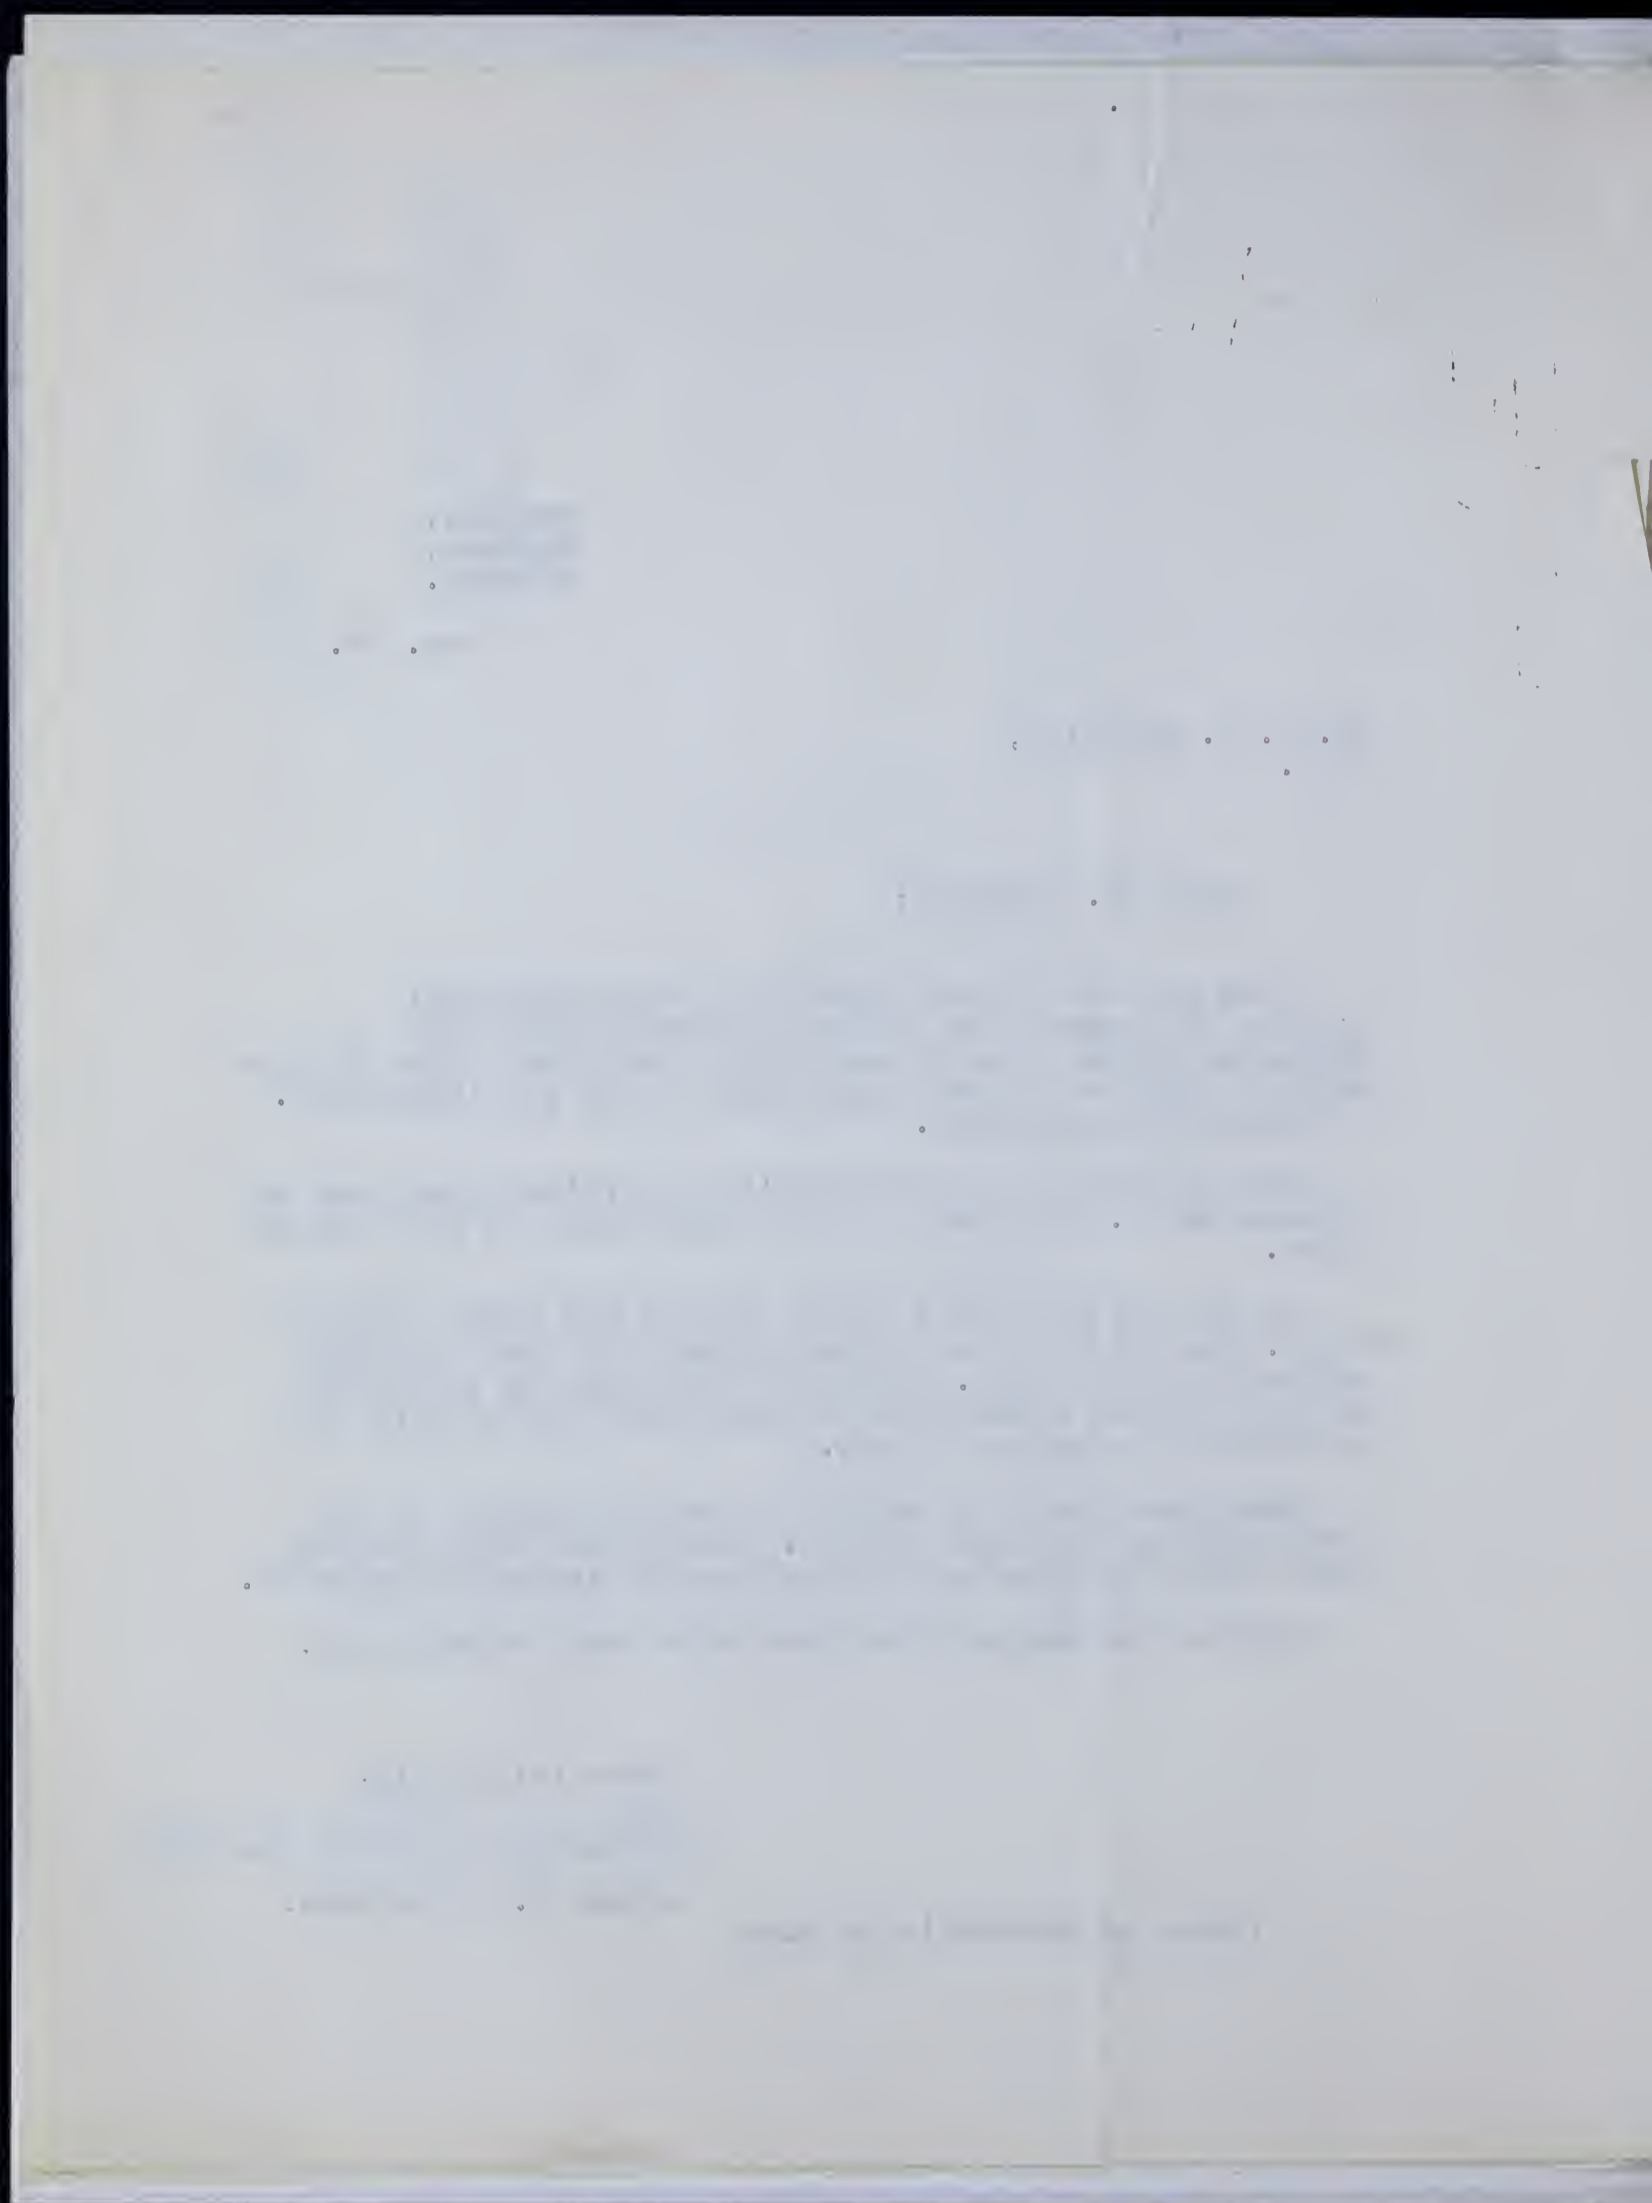

Trusting to see you again and renew our conversation,

Yours very truly,

Wesley M. Alkenbrack.
